

Pre-Dental Hygiene

Johnson County Community College

Emphasis of Study

Dental Hygienists are oral health professionals who, under the supervision of a dentist, provide preventive, educational, clinical, and therapeutic services to help the public develop and maintain good oral health. Dental Hygienists may work in private dental offices, dental clinics, public health agencies, hospitals, nursing homes, school districts or dental hygiene schools. The dental hygiene program at Johnson County Community College is an associate degree program of which the first year of courses can be completed at Barton County Community College. Since course requirements of Dental Hygiene programs vary, you should contact the college or university you plan to attend for specific program requirements. The general education course work required for Johnson County Community College is listed below.
