

Dare to know

Christian Fiction

Fiction that promotes Christian teachings or exemplifies a Christian way of life.

A sub-genre in which works of imaginative literature overtly draw on Christian themes, theology, and social norms. In contrast to Bible fiction, Christian fiction does not always involve Biblical events or characters. Novels may fit into the sub-genre based on an explicit Christian message coupled with a depiction of the protagonist's crisis of faith and/or spiritual growth. Classic examples include Dante Alighieri's Divine Comedy (c. 1321), Geoffrey Chaucer's The Canterbury Tales (1392), John Bunyan's The Pilgrim's Progress (1678), Lew Wallace's Ben-Hur: A Tale of the Christ (1880), Lloyd C. Douglas's The Robe (1942), C. S. Lewis's The Screwtape Letters (1942), Morris West's The Shoes of the Fisherman (1963), and Leonard Wibberley's The Centurion (1966). While earlier works were generally consistent with the Christian worldview, the twentieth century began to see the emergence of more heterodox examples, including Robert Graves's King Jesus (1946) and Nikos Kazantzakis's The Last Temptation of Christ (1950).

Common Elements

Acceptance of the Bible as truth
Belief in the Resurrection
Dealing with dilemmas through faith in Jesus
Biblical historicity
Miracles
God's explicit presence
Christian values

Redemption
Salvation
Persecution
Decency code
Dissenting portrayals
Realistic depictions
Modern influences
Postmodern influences

Benefits of Reading

Provides readers with a stress reliever
Presents encouraging and uplifting messages

Allows readers to observe people and their interactions with God
Offers readers new insights and understanding regarding real people

Increases readers' empathy

Modern Literary Examples

At Home in Mitford (1996) by Jan Karon	Mary, Called Magdalene (2003) by Margaret George
The Book of Strange New Things (2014) by Michel Faber	Mist of Midnight (2015) by Sandra Byrd
A Dance in Donegal (2021) by Jennifer Deibel	The One You're With (2021) by Lauren K. Denton
Gabriel's Atonement (2015) by Vickie McDonough	Piercing the Darkness (1989) by Frank E. Peretti
Gilead (2004) by Marilynne Robinson	The Prayer Box (2013) by Lisa Wingate
In the Shadow of Jezebel (2014) by Mesu Andrews	Redemption (2002) by Gary Smalley and Karen Kingsbury
Iscaiot (2013) by Tosca Lee	Return to Me (2013) by Lynn Austin
Long Way Gone (2016) by Charles Martin	The Shunning (1997) by Beverly Lewis
Logos (2015) by John Neeleman	The Testament of Mary (2012) by Colm Toibin
Lost in Darkness (2021) by Michelle Griep	This Present Darkness (1986) by Frank E. Peretti
The Lost Letters of Pergamum (2003) by Ben Witherington III	A Voice in the Wind (1993) by Francine Rivers
Love Amid the Ashes (2011) by Mesu Andrew	