6. Regional Workforce Needs

Workforce training will be expanded through partnerships.

Partnerships will address needs of the service area.

The first phase of Barton's strategic planning process consisted of collecting information. The information collected came from both informational and human resources. Barton used information from a variety of national, regional, and local data bases to conduct an environmental scan of the service area in order to gain an understanding of future trends. Concurrently, Barton conducted a SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats) Analysis with various College constituencies. The information gleaned from the environmental scan and the SWOT analysis was then used by the College Planning Coordinating Committee to formulate Strategic Statements.

The second phase of Barton's strategic planning process consisted of writing Strategic Statements. The College Planning Coordinating Committee derived the Strategic Statements from the Mission, Vision, and Ends statements. Strategic Statements consist of a series of statements the College Planning Coordinating Committee used to guide the development of the College's Strategic goals. Because of the complex nature of the Strategic Statement, the College Planning Coordinating Committee wrote detailed paragraphs explaining what they meant. The Strategic Statements clarifying paragraphs created by the College Planning Coordinating Committee were:

1. The College will be learning centered. The College will place learning first and provide learners with educational opportunities that are neither time nor place bound. The college will focus its resources and activities to keep learning central and engage everyone in the learning process.
2. The College is a good investment for individuals. A college is a good investment for students when it provides quality educational programs and services at a reasonable cost. Quality education consists of instruction that prepares the student for the next phase of his/her life; whether that means continuing his/her education, entering the work force, or satisfying a personal goal. Quality services consist of those support measures necessary for a student to attain his/her educational goal. Reasonable cost is the fair market value of the instruction and services provided to the student for the tuition he/she pays.

A college is a good investment for donors when the college uses donations ethically and within the spirit in which they are given.

3. The College will be a good steward of resources. All personnel are managing its services efficiently and feasibly, thus appropriately providing customer benefits.
4. The College will be a leader in economic development. The College has a realistic understanding of rural community resources. As such, Barton will provide leadership in economic development through: research of state, local and national trends that create opportunities, demographic research, development of entrepreneurial enterprise, collaborative partnerships with existing industries, and our ability to recruit, train and educate both an emergent as well as the incumbent workforce.
5. The College will build effective partnerships. Barton is committed to building relationships that not only represent our service area communities but also reflect the diversity of our campus communities. These partnerships are effective because they illustrate our willingness to respond to the needs of the communities we serve. In order to build these effective partnerships, the College will strengthen its efforts to reach out to individuals, businesses, and any other organizations to determine their needs and our ability to respond in an effective manner.
6. The College will highly value people. Barton employees are our most valued resource. The College will recruit, retain, and cultivate a well-qualified, committed workforce through competitive compensation, professional development, and a supportive work environment.
7. The College will strive for excellence. Excellence is a decision to be the best we can possibly be and to constantly strive to become better than we were before. In all programs (educational, extracurricular, athletic, etc.), the College will commit to excellence, to become the best it can possibly be and to continually work to better itself.
8. The College will maximize student and college potential. The College strives to understand changes in the global workplace and will empower students to learn how to learn and to love learning; in a manner to fuel their passion and curiosity. The college will be as open and flexible as possible to create the necessary learning environments and methodologies to prepare the student.

9. The College will cultivate life long learners. The College's ultimate goal is to ensure that students take responsibility for their own learning, understand their own learning styles and develop the ability to learn from any situation in which they may find themselves. These skills will produce individuals who are passionate about learning and who will embrace life long learning.
10. The College will make researched based decisions. The College will use data collected using sound research methodology to assist in making policy decisions rather than relying on anecdotal evidence or intuition.

The third and fourth phases of Barton's strategic planning process consisted of developing the Strategic and College Plans. The strategic plan identifies the desired end state, or goal, that the College intends to achieve in the next five years. The College Plan identifies the objectives the College will accomplish in the upcoming year to move the College closer to the goal. Through the use of this process, both goals and objectives are directly linked to the Board's Ends Statements.

As with the Strategic Statements and based on the complexity of the goals the College Planning Coordinating Committee believed it would be beneficial to non-committee members to provide explanatory paragraphs to explain the goals. Similarly, the College Planning Coordinating Committee believed it would be beneficial to show the linkage between the goals and the Ends Statements. The following series of tables do that by listing the goal; a brief paragraph explaining the goal; a list of the Ends Statements relevant to the goal, and a list of the Strategic Statements relevant to the goal

The College Plan also identifies actions that will be taken in the first year of the plan to help accomplish the objective; measurement benchmarks that will help assess progress towards the objective; and the administrator(s) responsible for the actions.
