Copyright

What is Copyright?

Copyright is found in state, federal, and international laws and grants exclusive rights and protections to creators and developers of creative works, including authors, musicians, artists, and film makers. These rights are specified in Title 17 of the U.S. Code (Copyright Act of 1976 and its provisions thereof) at §106 and include:

- The right to reproduce the work;
- The right to prepare derivative works based on the original work;
- The right to distribute copies of the work to the public;
- The right to perform the work publicly;
- The right to display the work publicly;
- The right to perform the work publicly via digital audio transmission;
- And the right to assign these rights to others.

Definitions for terms found throughout this page can be at the U.S. Copyright Office.

Copyright protects those that are "original works of authorship fixed in a tangible medium of expression" [17 U.S. Code §102]. These include literary, musical, and dramatic works; pantomimes and choreographic works; pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works; motion pictures and other audiovisual works; sound recordings, and architectural works.

Copyright infringement is exercising, without permission or legal authority, one or more of the exclusive rights granted to the copyright owner under section 106. In the context of file-sharing, the act of downloading or uploading substantial parts of a copyrighted work without authority constitutes an infringement. No matter the medium, using copyrighted material without the creator's consent is a violation of the law.

Copyright protection does not extend to ideas, procedures, systems, methods of operation, concepts, principles, discoveries, or processes, although processes can be patented. When using this type of material, though, academic ethics and professional courtesy dictate that the source should be credited unless the information is common knowledge.

For more information on the College's policies on copyright, intellectual property, and plagiarism, see Use of Copyrighted Materials (Procedure 2150).

Welcome to the Barton Library. We serve Barton Community College's students, faculty, and staff, as well as members of the Barton, Ellsworth, Pawnee, Rice, Rush, Russell, and Stafford County communities. It is our privilege to help facilitate your learning endeavors, whether you are on-campus or online. The Library provides academic support to the College's four campus locations, and to remote learners.

Browse the modules to find links to a wide variety of assets. We encourage you to take full advantage of the collections, resources, and services available to meet student and faculty academic needs.

Our librarians are available in-person, by telephone (620-792-9364), or through e-mail to aid in accessing library materials, conducting research, or answering technology questions.

Online Public Access Catalog (OPAC)

The screenshot displays the Barton Library OPAC website. At the top, there is a search bar with a 'GO' button and options for 'Advanced', 'Combo', and 'Media'. To the right of the search bar is the Barton Library logo featuring a cougar head and the text 'BARTON Cougars'. Further right is a 'List' section with a 'Temporary List (0)' and a 'View' button. Below the search bar is a navigation menu with 'Home', 'Search', 'Visual', and 'Links' buttons. The main content area is divided into three columns: 'News And Messages', 'Meet Your Librarian', and 'What's New'. The 'News And Messages' section contains information about library hours for fall and spring semesters, including a note about closures. The 'Meet Your Librarian' section features a photo of Kate Fiala, a Library Assistant, and a bio describing her background and contact information. The 'What's New' section displays several book covers, including 'The enlisted composer: Samuel Barber's...' and 'Evangelical Protestant Method'. Below these sections is a search bar with a 'Search:' label and a list of search criteria: 'Keyword', 'Title', 'Author', 'Subject', and 'Series'. At the bottom of the page, there is an 'Info' button, a footer with version and refresh information, and the BookSystems logo.

Library Assistant, Outreach Services

What I want our patrons to know: I enjoy assisting people, so ask me questions. I have a wide background in business management both in a corporate environment as well as in a small business, as well as a fair amount of life experience that I am willing to share with you.

I'm want to help you however I can. For those who are here to learn English, I have spent time in countries that do not speak English and have struggled to make myself understood and have been bewildered with other language idioms and slang, so I understand! We can communicate together, we just need to be patient.
